PRAYER-(Verses 3 to 12.) Two forces may be employed in promoting man's welfare, the one human, the other Divine. Some depend wholly upon the first, others wholly upon the second. The wise man will invoke both. So it was with Jacob. Having exercised his own best wisdom in a strategic attempt to avert the possible evil which Esau might attempt, he sought God in prayer. (Psalm I, 15.) The form of that prayer is remarkable, considering the time and circumstances under which it was offered. The one request was deliverance from the hand of Esau (Psalm lix, 1, 2), a direct interposition for personal security. He based his plea primarily upon God's command to return to his own country and the promise of protection. (Gen. xxviii, 15.) But in the same connection he disclaims all personal worth, asking this favor as the sole. UNITY LODGE NO. 251. K. OF H., meets first and third Saturdays at Monroe Hall, southwest corner Broadway or invited to our meetings.

SOMETHING that will interest everybody, everywhere-is one of the many good things that will distinguish the next Sunday Republic. The pictures are the best, the most interesting and the finest from an artistic standpoint that have been shown in many a long day. And not only are they things of beauty, butwhich is worth repeating because it is so entirely true-THEY ARE INTERESTING AND INSTRUCTIVE IN A PLEASING

That's One Feature of the Next Sunday Republic-and There Are Others.

For instance: A remarkably big and prosperous and happy family lives somewhere in Missouri. The next Sunday Republic will not only tell who they are and where they live, but it will present their pictures. They are something that Missourians will take a pride in-and they bught to do se.

That's Another Feature—and Still There Are Others.

This is the beginning of the Fall Fashion Season. Nowhere will such up-to-date fashions be shown as in the next Sunday Republic. There are the Paris Fashions, of course-gathered by the Sunday Republic's own artist correspondent in the French capital, clearly described, and handsomely illustrated in colors. And there are the New York fashions, shown by actual photographs and described comprehensively and entertainingly.

The news is never neglected. Every department of the news field is thoroughly covered in The Sunday Republic. The cables bring news from the Old World; the telegraph brings news from the New World, and The Republic's own corps of reporters gathers the news of the great city in which we live.

That shows how good is The Sunday Republic, take it "by and large," as a newspaper.

As to Pictures: There are pictures-AND pictures. Good plotures, better pictures and lest-or Sunday Republic Republicpictures. It's The Sunday Republic's pictures that are under discussion. There are none better anywhere. They are in colors and in plain black and white. They are from photographs, reproduced directly, and they are drawn by artists of recognized talent. In every case they are excellent. And they are appropriate to the subject and the season.

That shows that The Sunday Republic is not only newsy and interesting, but good to look upon.

A newspaper, to become great, or to remain great after it has become so, must always be of exceptional excellence in every department. That is The Sunday Republic's record-a hard one to make, but well worth the making. Of course, it is impossible to foretell what will be the great news event of next Sunday; that is a matter of one vital moment, and the great newspapers will grasp it with the quickness of an electric spark. But there is more previous certainty as to the special features that will be a part of the next Sunday Republic.

Pictures will be prominent in all of themand they will be well worth the prominence.

Pictorially, next Sunday's Republic promises to be even better than its predecessors. Faces that will attract you-scenes that will entrance you-will greet you as you turn the pages of next Sunday's Republic. All of which is only a part of this supreme

The next Sunday Republic will be the Best, the Handsomest and flost Entertaining of Sunday papers.

ground of God's goodness, and he begins with the covenant idea of God, the God of Abraham and of Istac, PRESENT-(Verses 13 to 16.) There are

Grepared for The Republic by J. E. Gilbert, D. D., secretary of American Society of Religious CONTEXT—After his vision at Bethel, Studied last week, Jacob resumed his fourney. On arriving at Haram he met Herrichselberg, and the studied last week, Jacob resumed his fourney. On arriving at Haram he met Herrichselberg, and the studied last week, Jacob resumed his fourney. On arriving at Haram he met Herrichselberg, and the studied last week, Jacob resumed his fourney. On arriving at Haram he met Herrichselberg, and the studied last week, Jacob resumed his work with the first the studied last week and the history of the life of that time, and will replay exactful study as a thought the history of the life of the life of the life of the history in the life of the li memorial.—(Verses 29 to 22.) All great events, if indeed any are strictly trivial, are worthy to be kept in remembrance. They belong to pesterily and help to transmit and perpetuate the influences that surround them. This night of prayer was commemorated in two ways. The place where it occurred was called Penicl, the face of God, the name given by Jacob himself, who felt that he had seen God. From generation to generation that name, marking a certain locality, told the story of the wrestling patriarch to all who heard it. The event was also preclaimed by a personal infirmity that led to a national observance. In the wrestling Jacob's thigh was for a time but out of joint, and he halted as he walked from the place. Wherefore the Israelites forever after refrained from cating the thigh, thus testifying to all their faith in what had occurred. The man of mighot prayer was, therefore, remembered by louble memorial.

REFLECTIONS—As with Jacob, so with double nemorial.

REFLECTIONS—As with Jacob, so with us—the severest trials result from former transgressions. Prudent procautions are consistent with faith in God. We may not meet a host of angels, but we may be assured of better help—that of the God of all grace. Every man may expect to come to his Jabbok, and before crossing into the uncertainties and perils that lie beyond he should go alone with God and find the strength needed for the approaching trial. Outward preparations are all proper; the favorable adjustment of circumstances in so far as human wisdom can effect them is ever to be commended, but the chief preparation is in one's own heart. If, in humble faith, we determine not to let go until the blessings come, we shall become true Israelites. Our Feniel may encourage others to wrestle and become the historic stimulus toward a more exalted spiritual life. A night of conflict will usually be followed by the victory at daybreak.
